CRIME AND CASUALTY.

The Body of Burr, One of the Missing Balloonists, Fully Identified.

The Milwaukee "Sentinel" Stands by Its Recent Exposures.

St. Louis, Oct. 25.—The body found yesterday on the shore of Lake Michigan, near Miller Station, is identified from the descriptions given of it in the dispatches, by Wm. E. Burr as that of his brother George Burr, who ascended with Prof. Wise in the balloon Pathfinder three weeks ago to-morrow. Mr. Burr has telegraphed to have the body properly cared for and a friend left this morning for Miller's Station to bring it home.

THE WISCONSIN HOUSE OF CORRECTION.

Milwaukee, Oct. 25.—The Sentinel this morning editorially refers to its article in Tuesday's paper, and after showing the difficulties there are in such cases, the opposition they must expect to encounter, and the risk they run in assuming the responsibility, says, "But we are willing to shoulder it. We have nothing to gain except the consciousness of working to prevent barbarities that the world would shudder over when committed by Turks," and adds, "Anyone whose duty it is to push an investigation, and yet filters, will be held up to the scorn of the community as long as the Sentinel has the type of a dollar left." They then formally call upon the mayor, pending an investigation, to suspend Dan Kennedy, chief of police, who was formerly inspector of the house of correction, and upon the board of supervisors to do likewise by the present superintendent of the house, and upon the state board of charities and reforms to file information in a court of justice against the above parties.

STRICTLY ACCIDENT.

Euston, Pa., Oct. 25.—By the fall of a scaffold, John Horn was killed and Frederick Sawyer probably fatally injured.

ATTEMPTED BURGLARY.

Cincinnati, Oct. 25.—At an early hour this morning John McCormick, who occupies a room in the same building in which F. Adler's jewelry store is located, on Elm street near Sixth, discovered that an attempt was being made by burglars to open the safe in Adler's store. He gave the alarm and the burglars fled. The lock had been charged with powder and fuses had been inserted ready to be touched when the burglars were frightened away. The safe contained valuables to the amount of $25,000.

SPORTING.

AQUATIC.

Referee Binkie thinks the prospects of a race between Hanlan and Courtney, exceedingly good, and that Washington City would furnish an excellent place. With quiet water and mild weather, he believes the time of the winner will be considerably better than Hanlan's record.

Boston, Oct. 25.—In the Harvard eight-oared race to-day, two miles straight away, the juniors were the victors. Time, juniors 8:33, seniors 8:38, sophomores 8:55. The juniors included three of the variety crew of last year.

PILICCO RACES.

Baltimore, Oct. 25.—At Pilicco to-day, Queens Own and Lucia started in the dash of a mile for two-year-olds, the former won. Time, juniors 8:33, seniors 8:38, sophomores 8:55. The juniors included three of the variety crew of last year.

BASE BALL.

San Francisco, Oct. 25.—The Chicago beat the Mutuals to-day 11 to 1.

Meteorological.

Petersburg, Va., Oct. 25.—The first ice and heaviest frost of the season here about 4 o'clock this morning. It is feared great damage was done to the tobacco crop. The weather is very cold.

Washington, Oct. 25.—Indications for the lower lake region, warmer, partly cloudy weather, with light south-west winds, and falling barometer. For Tennessee and Ohio valleys, warmer, clear or fair weather, east to south winds and falling barometer.

The Utah Utes.

Cheyenne, Oct. 25.—The dispatch of last night regarding the Utah Utes being on the war path, is confirmed by a private telegram. Gov. Hoyt has telegraphed to Washington for military assistance.

Grant.

San Francisco, Oct. 25.—Gen. Grant attended a banquet of the California pioneers, Senators Sharon, Cole and others being present. The party broke up a late hour.

Wireless.

The president has appointed Aaron M. Jones collector of internal revenue for the third district of Illinois.

The property of the Mantle Thread Company, of Full River, attached on a suit of the Second National Bank, has been placed in the hands of the trustees and advisory committee, for disposal for the benefit of all creditors. Liabilities, $15,000; assets, $25,000.

The High Court of Forfeiture of Ontario have resolved to accede from the Supreme Court of America in regard to the payment of endowment. E. S. Pike, of St. Louis, was elected Chief Ranger.

AT LAST.

The Memphis Yellow Fever Epidemic Declared Ended.

No Deaths or New Cases—Revival of Business.

Memphis, Oct. 25.—Another heavy frost fell last night in Memphis, and a thin coating of ice formed on pools of water in the suburbs. A thermometer placed by the signal officer on the ground as a test, marked 32° at 4 o'clock this morning.

The steamer Hard Cash from St. Louis, arrived this morning at 9 o'clock, being the first boat to land at the wharf since July 24th.

The weather is clear and cold. The following telegram was sent this morning:

Hon. A. S. Marks, governor, Nashville, Tenn.: The epidemic is declared ended today. Camps will be broken up Monday morning. I thank your excellency on behalf of the people of Memphis for the material assistance rendered and for further aid promised if necessary. Have sufficient funds to carry you through; will not be compelled to draw on you for any.

President of the Taxing Board, St. Louis.

LATELY.

Noon.—One case of fever reported this morning—Fred Beverly, two deaths occurred—Wm. Johnson, colored, Bunty street, and Joseph Lee, City Hospital. The following is the official announcement of the board of health declaring the epidemic ended:

Owing to a fall in the temperature within the past three days, there having been no more deaths, with prospect of continuation of cool weather, the board of health hereby declares the epidemic of 1879 at an end and announces that there is but little danger to be apprehended from yellow fever by absence or other persons coming into the city provided the instructions published September 24th be complied with in regard to ventilation of household goods, clothing, etc. It takes this occasion to advise people in the city to have infected places, there are a few cases of yellow fever yet in the city and a few cases may yet develop, but with ordinary prudence there is no danger of the disease now spreading from this source. By order of the board of health.

HUNTINGTON.

A Batch of Interesting News and Gossip from That Thriving Little City.

[Correspondence of the SENTINEL.]

Huntington, Oct. 25.—Circuit court is in session and business is being pushed through rapidly. Many cases have been tried and a number of verdicts returned. There was one in which Bailey Kelly, a merchant of this city, sued one R. F. Gardner for the recovery of a house and lot, claimed to have been sold to Gardner under duress. Kelly, it was claimed, had been in familiar with Gardner's wife, and to assist him in the sale, he had procured a deed in his name, and had received in cash and notes to the amount of $500. The case was tried, and Kelly sought to prove that he was a party to the sale. The jury, after deliberating all night, returned a verdict in favor of Kelly, and assessed his damages at $2,000.

Quite a number of the boys from the country are in the city, having come of their friends who have fled hither to assist them on charges that are not of their own making, and are now anxiously awaiting their fate. In fact, the dockets of this court seem to be especially rich in such cases, but the country youths don't seem to let up a bit.

The trial between our jury makers has been heard, and the jury returned a verdict of acquittal for Ours, he being charged with assault with intent to kill. The case works at this place are being pushed rapidly forward, and, with the present indications, gas will be an available article in a few days.

The mill of John Kenower & Son will be rebuilt, and work has already been commenced upon the old site. They expect to have the mill in operation within the next three weeks.

The churches of this city are generally in a prosperous condition, as far as can be learned, having regular services, with the exception of the Baptist Church, and they are awaiting an acceptable man. There is a rumor that a new pastor will be called to that church, the coming Sunday.

There is nothing needed in Huntington so much as a public hall. At present the city is without any respectable place to hold an entertainment in. There are plenty of men here who have the means to erect a hall, but they are not doing so. The city is a poor one, and it is a pity that it is so.

A young man came in from one of the rural districts the other day and took dinner at a hotel. While there he was waited upon by a friend who informed him that a young man by the name of Smith was in the city, and that he had been trying to find him. The friend was very kind, and he was very much interested in the young man. He was very much interested in the young man.

CABLEGRAMS.

The Editor of London "Truth" Found Guilty of Libelling Mrs. Langtry.

Cooke, the American Forger, Sentenced to Five Years' Penal Servitude.

BREXIT BRITAIN.

London, Oct. 25.—Elliott, in reply to Hanlan's notification that he (Hanlan) is willing to allow Elliott $100 for expenses and will row him on the Toronto Bay, declares that should he win the race with Boyd he will accept Hanlan's terms. Elliott says he is about forwarding articles to Boyd, but the news from Toronto, that the position of affairs, as Hanlan having refused to compete in England, forfeits the trophy. Elliott therefore hopes the match with Boyd will be for £200 a side and the trophy, and he appeals to the trustees of the trophy to sanction these arrangements.

ROSENBERG.

Adolphus Rosenberg of the London Truth, charged with publishing defamatory libels on Mrs. Cornwallis West, has pleaded guilty to publishing libels, but not guilty of knowing them to be false. The jury returned a verdict of guilty of publishing libels knowing them to be false. Sentence deferred.

GETS FIVE YEARS.

In the central criminal court to-day, Wm. Ruggold Cooper, the American who committed forgeries on the Lynn Mills and Bank of England, was sentenced to five years penal servitude.

PAULINE.

Liverpool, Oct. 25.—W. D. Johnson & Co., old established cotton brokers of this city, have suspended. Market is very feverish owing to speculators having bought up enough cotton to create artificial scarcity and to squeeze the largest possible difference out of sellers of October delivery. Confidence is shaken.

FRANCE.

Paris, Oct. 25.—Gambetta has returned. An evening paper states that he is opposed to the reopening of the amnesty question and that he disclaims the responsibility for utterance of the Republique Francaise. But whether he opposes or supports amnesty the chamber of deputies will not need to make it a cabinet question. They have strengthened themselves and have reassured moderate men by recent prosecutions. It seems also quite settled that clause 7 of Jules Ferry's educational bill will not be made a cabinet question. If it lives through the coming session of the chambers, France will certainly show itself a country of surprises.

FOREIGN NOTES.

Alfred Vekf Pasha has resigned the governorship of Roussa.

It is confidently expected that workmen from the two extremities of St. Gothard tunnel will meet midway in the mountain before New Year's day.

The chief of police of Moscow has agreed to organize a system of military night patrols to prevent disturbances.

Baron Ring, French representative in Roumelia, has been attacked and robbed by brigands in Macedonia.

The St. Petersburg Golos states that in the budget as realized for last year the revenue was $25,973,000 roubles.

It is said that Valogoff, minister of domains, will be appointed minister of foreign affairs in place of Gortchakoff, who will, however, continue chancellor.

A dispatch from Cape Town says Col. Langen, with a detachment of the first dragoon guards has gone to Middleburg in consequence of slight disturbance among the Boers.

A dispatch from London, says the semi-annual report of the Grand Trunk Railway is issued. After making provision for interest on debentures and all minor changes, a balance of $237 is carried forward with the 1300 pounds balance of previous half year. The gross receipts are over five percent less than for the corresponding period last year. The president promises full information relative to the extension to Chicago.

THE RAILROADS.

Superintendent Gorham left for Chicago to-day.

The P. F. W. & C. will change time two weeks from to-morrow.

The Grand Rapids is running another telegraph wire north from Grand Rapids the present facilities being inadequate to the business.

J. C. Gault, the new general manager, Superintendent Andrews, Division Superintendent Wade, and other officers of the Washburn, arrived in this city on a special train from St. Louis, at 11 o'clock to-day. They left again at 11:30, for Toledo.

The Gazette man this morning is crying about the address of the president of the convention yesterday which he claims was carried off by the reporters of the evening papers to prevent the Gazette man publishing it. That the Gazette man judges others by himself is very evident, and to take revenge on the reporters he inflicts the 150 readers of the Gazette with another installment of the Davenport story. So far as the address is concerned the SENTINEL reporter never saw it.

ADDITIONAL CITY NEWS.

THE FOOTLIGHTS.

Some Coming Attractions in the Amusement Line.

K. D. Roberts' Humpy Dumpty troupe, comprising a large corps of specialty artists, two famous clowns, and the best brass band and orchestra travelling, play at the Academy next month.

One of the most original and captivating performances ever given in New York is Madgett & Bassett's "Tide a Bree" entertainment, a performance resembling the "Punch and Judy" and said by the New York press to be of equal merit. They have been crowding Wood's Broadway Theatre there to repletion nightly. They are accompanied by a phenomenal pianist, Mr. Oscar P. Newell, and will appear in this city next month.

When the "Pinafore" fever was at its height (this is a little vague, for the craze seems in no way abated), Mr. John T. Ford, the manager, of Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia, conceived the idea of organizing a juvenile "Pinafore" company. He collected fifty children of musical and dramatic ability, none over ten years of age, and drilled them patiently, and the result was the most marvelous performance of "Pinafore" ever seen. They played to crowded houses in Washington, Philadelphia and Baltimore, and then went to Wallack's Theatre, New York, where they created a furor last summer, playing to enormous business. They are now on a tour in the south, and their average nightly receipts are $700. Strong efforts are being made to bring them west, and it is possible that these "wonders of the world," as the Atlanta Constitution terms them, may appear in this city ere long. They are the original of all the "Children Pinafore" Companies.

A GOOD PAIR.

Who Grace the Prisoner's Box at Police Court This Morning.

R. DeHart, the victim of many fines and more drunks, made his semi-occasional appearance before the mayor this morning.

DeHart has been in hard luck. He only got out of jail a few days ago, and last evening, being pretty well bowled up, he went home and endeavored to make things interesting for his spouse. She kicked at the proceeding, and he kicked at her and he got the most work in. The mayor, out of kind consideration of the fact that DeHart had no overcoat, sent him over out of the cold for thirty days.

"Wm. Smith!" The name sounded familiar, and at the first call about thirty men in the lobby jumped up and said "Here!"

The right William was, however, singled out by the general air of goodness which he displayed in profusion. William, so the affidavit read, was drunk; that is, he was off his kerkase. Now a "kerbase" should always be the prudent man's objective point. William lost sight of it, and shipped clear off, and the whisky and beer mingled in inharmonious confusion and knocked his locomotive machinery clear out of gear. As this was his first offense he was discharged.

BREVITIES.

The Olympic band was on the street this afternoon.

The boys are cleaning up the engine house yard to-day.

The Horstman, injured on the railroad a week ago, is no better.

Charlie Brackendridge and J. D. Cook are at the coffee stand to-day doing some figuring.

George Gordon is sitting helplessly on a huge heap of checks which must be sorted out.

There will be a concert at the Baptist Church, in Perry township, one week from to-night.

George Terry wrenched a wheel from his buggy this morning in the Calhoun street car track.

E. F. Kidder, the gentlemanly manager of Whitney's Opera House, Detroit, was in the city to-day.

The American Union Telegraph Co. will occupy the office on Court street recently vacated by Justice Beck's.

The SENTINEL was in error last evening in stating the Universalist society would be held Thursday evening. It is Wednesday next Thursday.

Justice Pratt erected a stove in his office yesterday. It is a company concern run in the interest of Dave Robinson, Sam Morris, Judge Sinclair & Company.

J. A. McDonald, of Hanna, Wiler & Co., accompanied by his mother and sister, and Miss Agnes Dykes, left this afternoon for Kendallville, to attend the funeral of William Dykes which takes place to-morrow.

The Gazette persists in having August Zerulla answer to the charge of provoking on his wife, before the mayor this morning whereas he was tried yesterday afternoon and was taxed $18.20 as stated by the SENTINEL last evening.

Highly Indignant.

August Zerulla has paid his fine and now proposes to make the water hot for Mrs. Augustus. He says she maligned him and did him an irreparable injury by slandering him, and as he has been obliged to pay a fine for something he didn't do, he will make her pay for something she did do. He now says that the woman who is in Germany who claims to be his wife has been overheard from him, and also says that the letter he got from Germany was from his father and not from his former wife. Mrs. Zerulla says that the present incumbent of his affections, told him that she had children in Germany herself, and that together she is much worse than he is, and he proposes to make her suffer for this scrape.

When last seen he was looking for Prosecuting Attorney Hench.

RELIGIOUS.

The next meeting of the Northern Indiana Synod will be held in this city next October.

Rev. Thomas Collins of Notre Dame was yesterday morning ordained a priest at the cathedral.

Dr. Stevens, formerly well known here, will preach in the Baptist Church to-morrow evening.

D. S. Alexander was last week elected secretary of the Central Indiana Congregational Association.

Rev. Seymour will lead the union prayer meeting at Temperance Hall, corner of West Washington and Fulton streets, to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Dr. Stone will hold the usual services at the Baptist Church to-morrow morning. In the afternoon he will officiate at the funeral of Mrs. James A. Garvin.

The High Court of Foresters of Ontario have resolved to secede from the Supreme Court of America in regard to the payment of endowments. E. S. Pike, of St. Louis, was elected Chief Ranger.

AT LAST.

The Memphis Yellow Fever Epidemic Declared Ended.

No Deaths or New Cases—Revival of Business.

Memphis, Oct. 25.—Another heavy frost fell last night in Memphis, and a thin coating of ice formed on pools of water in the suburbs. A thermometer placed by the signal officer on the ground as a test, marked 32° at 4 o'clock this morning.

The steamer Hard Cash from St. Louis, arrived this morning at 9 o'clock, being the first boat to land at the wharf since July 24th.

The weather is clear and cold.

The following telegram was sent this morning:

Hon. A. S. Marks, governor, Nashville, Tenn.

The epidemic is declared ended this day. Camps will be broken up Monday morning. The people of Memphis, in behalf of the people of Memphis, for the material assistance rendered and for further aid promised if necessary, have sufficient funds to carry us through; will not be compelled to draw on you for any.

President of the Taxing District.

LATER.

HUNTINGTON.

A Batch of Interesting News and Gossip from That Thriving Little City.

[Correspondence of the SENTINEL.]

Huntington, Oct. 21.—(Circuit court is in session and business is being pushed through rapidly. Many cases have excited considerable attention and interest.

There was one in which Kelly, a merchant of this city, sued one J. F. Gardner for the recovery of a sum of money. The case was heard by Judge Kelly, who claimed to have been deeded to Gardner under duress. Kelly, it was claimed, had been too familiar with Gardner, who was a wife and a child, to be deeded to Gardner a house and lot, gave him $100 in cash and notes to the amount of $900.

The Editor of London "Truth" Found Guilty of Libelling Mrs. Langtry.

Cooke, the American Forger, Sentenced to Five Years' Penal Servitude.

GREAT BRITAIN.

London, Oct. 25.—Elliott, in reply to Hanlan's notification that he (Hanlan) is willing to allow Elliott £100 for expenses and will row him on the Toronto Bay, desires to say that should he win the race with Boyd he will accept Hanlan's terms. Elliott says he was about forwarding articles to Boyd, but the news from Toronto altered the position of affairs, as Hanlan having refused to compete in England, forfeits the trophy. Elliott therefore hopes the match with Boyd will be for £200 a side and the trophy, and he appeals to the trustees of the trophy to sanction these arrangements.

ROSENBERG.

Adolphus Rosenberg of the London Truth, charged with publishing defamatory libels on Mrs. Cornwallis West, has pleaded guilty to publishing libels, but not guilty of knowing them to be false. The jury returned a verdict of guilty, publishing libels knowing them to be false. Sentence deferred.

GETS FIVE YEARS.

In the central criminal court to-day, Wm. Ronggold Cooper, the American who committed forgeries on the Lynn Mills and Bank of England, was sentenced to five years penal servitude.

FAILURE.

Liverpool, Oct. 25.—W. D. Johnson & Co., old established cotton brokers of this city, have suspended. Market is very feverish owing to speculators having bought up enough cotton to create artificial scarcity and to squeeze the largest possible difference out of sellers of October delivery. Confidence is shaken.

Who Greased the Prisoner's Box at Police Court This Morning?

R. DeHart, the victim of many fines and more drunks, made his semi-occasional appearance before the mayor this morning.

DeHart has been in hard luck. He only got out of jail a few days ago, and last evening, being pretty well bowled up, he went home and endeavored to make things interesting for his spouse. She kicked at the proceeding, and he kicked at her and he got the most work in. The mayor, out of kind consideration of the fact that DeHart had no overcoat, sent him over out of the cold for thirty days.

"Wm. Smith?" The name sounded familiar, and at the first call about thirty men in the lobby jumped up and said "Here!"

The right William was, however, singled out by the general air of gloom which he displayed in profusion. William, so the affidavit read, was drunk that is, he was off his kebab. Now a "kebab" should always be the prudent man's objective point. William lost sight of it, and shipped clear off, and the whisky and beer mingled in inharmonious confusion and knocked his locomotive machinery clear out of gear. As this was his first offense he was discharged.

BREVITIES.

The Olympic band was on the street this afternoon.

The boys are cleaning up the engine house yard to-day.

The Horstman boy, injured on the railroad a week ago, is no better.

Charlie Brackendridge and J. D. Cook are at the coffee stand to-day doing some figuring.

George Gordon is sitting helplessly on a huge heap of checks which must be sorted out.

There will be a concert at the Baptist Church, in Perry township, one week from to-night.

George Ferry wrenched a wheel from his buggy this morning in the Calhoun street track.

E. E. Kilder, the gentlemanly manager of Whitney's Opera House, Detroit, was in the city to-day.

The American Union Telegraph Co. will occupy the office on Court street recently vacated by Justice Beeks.

The Sentinel was in error last evening in stating the Universalist social would be held Thursday evening. It is Wednesday next Thursday.

Justice Pratt erected a stove in his office yesterday. It is a company concern run in the interest of Dave Robinson, Sam Morris, Judge Sinclair & Company.

J. A. McDonald, of Hanna, Wiler & Co., accompanied by his mother and sister, and Miss Agnes Dykes, left this afternoon for Kendallville, to attend the funeral of William Dykes which takes place to-morrow.

The Sentinel persists in having August Zerulla answer to the charge of provoking on his wife, before the mayor this morning, whereas he was tried yesterday afternoon and was taxed $18.20 as stated by the SENTINEL last evening.

THE RAILROADS.

Superintendent Gorham left for Chicago to-day.

The P. F. W. & C. will change time two weeks from to-morrow.

The Grand Rapids is running another telegraph wire north from Grand Rapids the present facilities being inadequate to the business.

J. C. Gault, the new general manager, Superintendent Andrews, Division Superintendent Wade, and other officers of the Wabash, arrived in this city on a special train from St. Louis at 11 o'clock to-day. They left again at 11:30, for Toledo.

The Gazette man this morning is crying about the address of the president of the convention yesterday which he claims was carried off by the reporters of the evening papers to prevent the Gazette from publishing it. That the Gazette man judges others by himself is very evident, and to take revenge on the reporters he inflicts the 150 readers of the Gazette with another installment of the Davenport story. So far as the address is concerned the SENTINEL reporter never saw it.

THE FOOTLIGHTS.

Some Coming Attractions in the Amusement Line.

N. D. Roberts's Humpty Dumpty troupe, comprising a large corps of specialty artists, two famous clowns, and the best brass band and orchestra travelling, play at the Academy next month.

One of the most original and captivating performances ever given in New York is Padgett & Bassett's "Brice a Brac" entertainment, a performance resembling the "Troubadours" and said by the New York press to be of equal merit. They have been crowding Wood's Broadway Theatre there to repletion nightly.

They are accompanied by a phenomenal pianist, Mr. Oscar P. Newell, and will appear in this city next month.

When the "Pianoforte" fever was at its height (this is a little vague, for the craze seems in no way abated), Mr. John T. Ford, the manager, of Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia, conceived the idea of organizing a juvenile "Pianoforte" company. He collected fifty children of musical and dramatic ability, none over ten years of age, and drilled them patiently, and the result was the most marvelous performance of "Pianoforte" ever seen.

They played to crowded houses in Washington, Philadelphia and Baltimore, and then went to Wallack's Theatre, New York, where they created a future last summer, playing to enormous business. They are now on a tour in the south, and their average nightly receipts are $700. Strong efforts are being made to bring them west, and it is possible that these "wonders of the world," as the Atlanta Constitution terms them, may appear in this city ere long. They are the original of all the "Children Pianoforte" Companies.

Highly Indignant.

August Zerulla has paid his fine and now proposes to make the water hot for Mrs. Augustus. He says she maligned him and did him an irreparable injury by slandering him, and as he has been obliged to pay a fine for something he didn't do, he will make her pay for something she did do. He now says that the woman who is in Germany who claims to be his wife, has been divorced from him, and also says that the latter he got from Germany was from his father and not from his mother's wife. He also says that the present incumbent of his affections, told him that she had six children in Germany herself, and together she is much worse than he is, and he proposes to make her suffer for this escape.

Who has seen her was looking for Prosecuting Attorney Hench.

RELIGIOUS.

The next meeting of the Northern Indiana Synod will be held in this city next October.

Rev. Thomas Collins, of Notre Dame was yesterday morning ordained a priest at the cathedral.

Dr. Stevens, formerly well known here, will preach in the Baptist Church to-morrow evening.

D. S. Alexander was last week elected secretary of the Central Indiana Congregational Association.

Rev. Seymour will lead the union prayer meeting at Temperance Hall, corner of West Washington and Fulton streets, to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Dr. Stone will hold the usual services at the Baptist Church to-morrow morning. In the afternoon he will officiate at the funeral of Mrs. James A. Gavin.

The administration—especially HAYES, SHERMAN and EVANS—is eating a good deal of dirt in New York this campaign. CONKLING has whipped them in thoroughly.

PROTECTIONISTS, to give their doctrine favor with the masses, argue that the tariff protects the American workman from the competition of "foreign pauper labor." If this was a fact then "skilled labor," or labor engaged in the protected industries, would be attracted to this country. But the statistics show that a very small portion of the immigration to this country is of mechanics engaged in the protected industries. As, for instance, in 1870, a year of high tariff and very large immigration, out of a total of 887,203 emigrants the number who came to work in articles that could be or were protected, was 7,960, or less than 2 percent.

In 1864, when there was not a ghost of a chance of democratic success in this state, JOSEPH E. McDONALD was called upon by his party and made the race for governor. He conducted a thorough and brilliant—albeit not successful—campaign. He has several times served his party as chairman of the Indiana state central committee. Although he is richly entitled to another term in the United States senate—where he has achieved a national reputation for ability, learning and integrity—we have no doubt that he will consent to serve his party as its candidate for governor. Senator McDONALD would be elected by 20,000 majority.

The Columbia City Post seems to think that nothing is the matter with the democratic party. It also charges the SENTINEL with "trying to convey the idea that the great democratic party, comprising a majority of the voters in all the states, has been going wonderfully astray." The Post errs. The SENTINEL simply holds that a few would-be leaders have placed the democratic party in a false position and have in some states committed the party to unsound and pernicious doctrines. We believe that if we are to win next year we must do so on a solid platform, enunciating only fundamental democratic principles, and that our ticket must consist of representative democrats who will be acceptable to the conservative elements of the country.

In 1870 the government tariff was taken from coffee and in '72 hides were also made free. The entire trade of the United States with Venezuela in 1870 amounted to $3,846,155; $2,037,312 were imports and $1,808,843 were exports. In 1876 this trade had increased to $9,300,000; the imports having increased to $5,375,715 or nearly three times more than in 1870 and the exports to $3,924,285 or two and one half times greater than in 1870. The increase of imports in provisions and bread stuffs was $410,000 in 1870 to 1,253,000 in 1876, and the American shipping in the Venezuela trade had increased from fifteen vessels to 134 and from 2,571 tons capacity to 43,459 tons, and from 109 hands to 1,255 hands. The export of tanned leather from the United States increased under free hides from $2,864,809 in 1872 to $7,940,000 in '76.

A DESERTED STREET.

In the early history of Fort Wayne Columbia street was the pride of its citizens. The entire business of the town was done on this street, and it would, twenty years ago, have been folly for a merchant to try to do business anywhere else in the city. Besides its prestige, the street had a decided advantage of location. Running parallel with the canal, with lots 150 feet in depth, and with north and south fronts, in its prosperity it would have been hard to believe that as a retail business street, it should ever become a thing of the past. Yet it is so. Excepting only the business of a very few enterprising firms, the street has been surrendered to jobbers, hucksters, small dealers and variety shows. The splendid business houses of twenty years ago have become the hurling places for the business men of the town. The business men of the town are to be distinguished from the jobbers by their clean faces, steady clothes and their high Columbia street hats. Nothing like this matter is with it. The business men of the town are to be distinguished from the jobbers by their clean faces, steady clothes and their high Columbia street hats. Nothing like this matter is with it.

and make money as long as enterprising men brought trade to the street, but they did nothing to keep it there. They contributed nothing to business, they only plucked share of what others brought there. Tired of building up the business of others, the enterprising business firms of the street, such as Root & Co., Foster Bros., Ellisworth & Co. and many others, moved to other streets, and now, with but few exceptions, notably Prescott Bros., A. D. Bradlee and Morgan & Beach, the old foggy grins of the street have absolute possession. Like the street, though, they are going to decay. God speed them.

STATE POLITICS.

New Albany Ledger Standard:
There is a wide spread feeling in favor of Senator McDONALD as the democratic nominee for governor in 1880—Fort Wayne Sentinel.

That is getting right down to business and means victory. Senator McDONALD is the man to run for governor if he is not compelled to stand for vice president.

The Indiana Herald lightens up the gloom by the following:

The Fort Wayne SENTINEL says "suppose is within the reach of the democratic party." It's a mighty long reach, though. For nearly twenty years that party has been testing the policy of a total abandonment of everything like principle, and running away after every victory and leaving even promised success—and still receding, but not "within reach," by a long way.

Indiana Herald:
What's the matter with the democratic party?—Fort Wayne Sentinel.

Judging from the odor pervading the air, we infer that it is tolerably dead—especially in Ohio. Col. W. W. Dudley, of Indianapolis, is favorably mentioned in connection with the office of governor. There is no man in the state for whom the Herald would work more cordially or harder than Col. Dudley. He is the man for the place.

The Golden Times has a little to say about the presidential campaign and makes the following prophecies right now:

It can't be said that Tom Hendricks weeps over the disappearance of Thurman's prospects for a presidential nomination, but he fears that the "grass" which swept Ohio's big statesman out of sight may serve Indiana's big statesman in the same manner.

There is only one chance left now for Thurman to become president of the United States and that is if Hayes and Wheeler should be elected, Thurman being pro tempore president of the senate.

The Columbia City Post settles the whole question right here:

Sherman, Blaine and Conkling may just as well step aside. Grant is the coming man. And he will be beaten.

The Post is surprised that the Fort Wayne SENTINEL should double and redouble its efforts to Saturday's daily issue in which it asks the question, "What is the matter with the democratic party?" In its answer to the question it seeks to convey the idea that the great democratic party, comprising a majority of all the voters in the states, has been going wonderfully astray. It is not so. There is nothing the matter with the democratic party.

The United States consul at Rochelle, France, says all the grapevines in that district must be completely destroyed. All devices for arresting the progress of the phylloxera pest having failed, the only remedy left is to import vines from America, which are proof against phylloxera. There must, however, be a great falling off in vine productions during a few years to come. The exports of brandy from Rochelle last year to the United States were valued at nearly $1,000,000. Large importations of wheat from the United States will be necessary.

There was a great liberal demonstration in London, Friday. The Marquis of Harrington in addressing the mass meeting in the evening, sharply attacked Salisbury's recent speech. He said the policy indicated in Salisbury's circular had not been carried out and Russia had been confirmed in all the conquests she made by the treaty of San Stefano. In discussing the question of reforms in Turkey, Harrington characterized Salisbury's defence of the assertion that England had frequently spent blood and treasure in defense of bad governments, as an immoral policy.

Intelligence received at Simla from Yar Yand to the 31st of August announces that 12,000 Udegalis Kirghiz and Kipchaks had reached Mingyul, Kashgar, where they met a large force of Chinese. Two indecisive engagements were fought, in which the Chinese lost many killed. A Kipchak, who was arrested as a spy, states that the Russians supplied stores to the invaders. Chinese troops from Yangi, Hissar and Yar, have been dispatched against them. Another Afghan column is advancing across the Altai Pamir Mountains and has captured Sirik Kohl.

NEWS NOTES.

Hon. John O. New telegraphed from Sacramento that Gen. Grant will visit Indianapolis on the 20th of November.

The U. S. treasury department has transferred an additional $10,000,000 in gold to the assay office, New York, to facilitate foreign exchange. The San Francisco mint is coining small gold pieces to supply the demand.

Over 150 vessels of all classes have arrived at Buffalo during the past week. This is the largest fleet ever there at one time in ten years. The effect on grain freights by canal, hence to eastern points, has resulted in a rapid advance.

The Philadelphia mint is at work principally on silver dollars. It is expected that the treasury will be able to purchase sufficient silver for delivery at San Francisco, to enable that mint to relieve the Philadelphia mint of the dollar coinage. The latter mint will then work on small gold pieces.

M. Lesseps and his engineers having adopted the theory that the Israelites crossed the Red Sea near Lake Timsah, the Abbe Meigne, editor of the Paris Le Monde, appeals to "the whole Christian world" to subscribe the requisite funds to enable the "religions of the army overcome by the Almighty himself" to be brought to light.

President John Taylor, Brigham Young's successor, in an interview recently, said the government could not suppress polygamy, because it was a divine revelation; if it ever died out it would be the work of Providence. He says had debts, locked doors and drunkards are unknown in Utah, except among the gentiles, "Show me," he said, "a man among the gentiles who is not actually a polygamist." Speaking of religious liberty, he said the Mormon leaders had always been more liberal with the gentiles than the latter had been with the former. Salt Lake City is the only place in the world where the Jews are classed with the gentiles.

THE administration—especially HAYES, SHERMAN and EVARTS—is eating a good deal of dirt in New York this campaign. CONKLING has whipped them in thoroughly.

PROTECTIONISTS, to give their doctrine favor with the masses, argue that the tariff protects the American workman from the competition of "foreign pauper labor." If this was a fact then "skilled labor," or labor engaged in the protected industries, would be attracted to this country. But the statistics show that a very small portion of the immigration to this country is of mechanics engaged in the protected industries. As, for instance, in 1870, a year of high tariff and very large immigration, out of a total of 387,203 emigrants the number who came to make articles that could be or were protected, was 7,960, or less than 2 percent.

In 1864, when there was not a ghost of a chance of democratic success in this state, JOSEPH E. McDONALD was called upon by his party and made the race for governor. He conducted a thorough and brilliant—albeit not successful—campaign. He has several times served his party as chairman of the Indiana state central committee. Although he is richly entitled to another term in the United States senate—where he has achieved a national reputation for ability, learning and integrity—we have no doubt that he will consent to serve his party as its candidate for governor. Senator McDONALD would be elected by 20,000 majority.

The Columbia City Post seems to think that nothing is the matter with the democratic party. It also charges the SENTINEL with "trying to convey the idea that the great democratic party, comprising a majority of the voters in all the states, has been going wonderfully astray." The Post errs. The SENTINEL simply holds that a few would-be leaders have placed the democratic party in a false position and have in some states committed the party to unsound and pernicious doctrines. We believe that if we are to win next year we must do so on a sound platform, enunciating only fundamental democratic principles, and that our ticket must consist of representative democrats who will be acceptable to the conservative elements of the country.

In 1870 the government tariff was taken from coffee and in '72 hides were also made free. The entire trade of the United States with Venezuela in 1870 amounted to $3,345,146; $2,037,312 were imports and $1,307,833 were exports. In 1876 this trade had increased to $9,300,000; the imports having increased to $5,875,715 or nearly three times more than in 1870 and the exports to $3,424,278 or two and one half times greater than in 1870. The increase of imports in provisions and bread stuffs was $410,000 in 1870 to 1,252,000 in 1876, and the American shipping in the Venezuela trade had increased from fifteen vessels to 134 and from 2,671 tons capacity to 43,459 tons, and from 109 hands to 1,255 hands. The export of tanned leather from the United States increased under free hides from $2,864,800 in 1872 to $7,940,000 in '76.

A DESERTED STREET.

It is the early history of Fort Wayne Columbia street was the pride of its citizens. The entire business of the town was done on this street, and it would, twenty years ago, have been folly for a merchant to try to do business anywhere else in the city. Besides its prestige, the street had a decided advantage of location. Running parallel with the canal, with lots 150 feet in depth, and with north and south fronts, in its prosperity it would have been hard to believe that as a retail business street, it should ever become a thing of the past. Yet it is so. Excepting only the business of a very few enterprising firms, the street has been surrendered to jobbers, hucksters, small dealers and variety stores. The splendid business houses of twenty years ago have become the bartering places for cheap skins. The business men of the street can be distinguished from the street by their pinched faces, seedy clothes and shabby plug hats. Now, what was the matter with Columbia street? The answer is, it was the business men of the street who did live and make money as long as enterprising men brought trade to the street, but they did nothing to keep it there. They contributed nothing to business, they only plucked share of what others brought there. Tired of building up the business of others, the enterprising business firms of the street, such as ROTH & CO., FOSTER BROS., ELLSWORTH & CO. and many others, moved to other streets, and now, with but few exceptions, notably PRESCOTT BROS., A. D. BRADLIFF and MORGAN & BRACH, the old fogys of the street have absolute possession. Like the street, though, they are going to decay. God speed them.

STATE POLITICS.

New Albany Ledger-Standard:

There is a wide spread feeling in favor of Senator McDonald as the democratic nominee for governor in 1880—Fort Wayne Sentinel.

That is getting right down to business and means victory. Senator McDonald is the man to run for governor if he is not compelled to stand for vice president.

The Indiana Herald lightens up the gloom by the following:

The Fort Wayne SENTINEL says "success is within the reach of the democratic party." It is a mighty long reach, though.

For nearly twenty years that party has been testing the policy of a total abandonment of everything like principle, and running away after every windmill that even promised success—and still success is not "within reach," by a long way.

Indiana Herald:

What's the matter with the democratic party?—Fort Wayne Sentinel.

Judging from the odor pervading the air, there is no man in the state for whom the Herald would work more cordially or harder than Col. Dudley. He is the man for the place.

The Goshen Times has a little to say about the presidential campaign and makes the following prophecies right now:

It can be said that Tom Hendricks wears over the disappearance of Thurman's prospects for a presidential nomination, but he fears that the "treason" which swept Ohio's big star out of sight may serve Indiana's big straddler in the same manner.

There is a chance left now for Thurman to become president of the United States and that is if Hayes and Wheeler should die or abdicate, Thurman being now temporary president of the senate.

The Columbia City Post settles the whole question right here:

Sherman, Blaine and Conkling may just as well step aside. Grant is the coming man. And he will be beaten.

And here too:

The Post is surprised that the Fort Wayne SENTINEL should double-lead an editorial in Saturday's daily issue in which it asks the question, "What is the matter with the democratic party?"

In its answer to the question it seeks to convey the idea that the great democratic party, comprising a majority of the voters in all the states, has been going wonderfully astray. Far from it. There is nothing the matter with the democratic party.

PERSONAL.

The emperor of Germany reads his Bible every morning, and is very religious.

Madame Essipoff, the pianist, is about to marry her early teacher, Leschetitzky.

Robert P. Crockett, only surviving son of "Davy" Crockett, has a farm near Grandbury, Tex.

John Carman, a sailor in the war of 1812, lives in South Carolina, and wears his hair in a queue.

Victor Hugo is trying to persuade Garibaldi to renounce his Italian nationality and become a citizen of France.

Fernando Wood is described by a Paris correspondent as a tall, handsome, prepossessing old man, with a commanding presence.

Capt. Boyton, the swimmer, has forty-two medals and decorations, bestowed on him in recognition of the merits of his swimming suit.

Baron Hirsch, of Paris, who is enabled to keep the wolf from the door by means of a pittance of $20,000,000, has just won the first prize of $100,000 in a Vienna lottery.

Prof. Gray, it is announced, has been recognized as the original inventor of the telephone, and is to receive 20 percent of the profit from rental of the machines in America.

Col. Edwin Lawrence Drake, who sank the first oil well, is still living in Pennsylvania, in ill-health and rather straightened circumstances. He receives a pension from the state.

Henry Ward Beecher likes to talk of Indianapolis, and wants to be buried there. He tells some amusing stories of his citations before presbyteries and synods for heresies in his early days.

Prof. Proctor, the astronomer, is on the way to this country. He will lecture in Philadelphia next month, and throughout the country during the winter. In the spring he sails for Australia.

Bismarck is said to be at times very gloomy, reproaching himself for having been the cause of wars which have brought death and misery to thousands, and which but for him would have been prevented. He complains that life is a burden of care and remorse.

Henry Labouchere, of the London Truth, has refused to withdraw from the Beefsteak Club.

Lord Beaconsfield will attend the banquet of the lord mayor of London on the 10th of November.

The bullion withdrawn from the Bank of England Friday was for the United States. Silver now quoted at 52 11-16d.

The executive council of Transvaal consists of a lieutenant governor, commandant of troops, colonial secretary, attorney general and secretary of native affairs.

The London Times says the prices of Cornish copper ore advanced Thursday, £6 per ton, compared with last sales, and £9 10s. per ton, as compared with prices current at the last of September.

President Hayes has recognized Robert Charles Clipperton as consul of her Britannic majesty for the states of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Iowa and Wisconsin, to reside at Philadelphia.

Signor Popoli, a Trieste banker, has committed suicide on account of the impossibility of fulfilling some large contracts. His liabilities are $50,000 florins, and his creditors are not likely to obtain more than 30 percent.

The cast steel works of O. Bookhoff, Berlin, have been compelled to suspend their large private business, every resource being required to execute the enormous orders of Russia for steel cannon and other implements of war.

Midhat Pasha, at Vienna, has resigned the governorship of Syria, because he will not hold office under Mahomed Medino Pasha, the new Turkish minister. It is doubtful whether the sultan will accept his resignation.

A dispatch from Berlin announces that the discovery of a liberal league among the students of the university at Hsaw, Russia, led to a sanguinary conflict between the military and people, who would not allow the students to be arrested.

The possibility of trouble between Russia and Persia is a further reason for postponing the Tekke-Turkoman expedition. The Persians are jealous of the commercial advantages granted by the Chinese, through a treaty between Russia and China, by which the latter secures Kuldja.

The Vienna Political Correspondence publishes a dispatch from Cetinje reporting that a band of Albanians had attacked the Montenegrins on the 23d inst., between Orcharitz and Pelika. A sanguinary fight ensued, the result of which is not known. The Arnats are arming and preparing to attack the Montenegrins and Servians.

The United States consul at Rochelle, France, says all the grapevines in that district must be completely destroyed. All devices for arresting the progress of the phylloxera pest having failed, the only remedy left is to cut out vines from America, which are proof against phylloxera. There must, however, be a great falling off in vine productions during a few years to come. The exports of brandy from Rochelle last year to the United States were valued at nearly $1,000,000. Large importations of wheat from the United States will be necessary.

There was a great liberal demonstration in London, Friday. The Marquis of Hartington in addressing the mass meeting in the evening, sharply attacked Salisbury's recent speech. He said the policy indicated in Salisbury's circular had not been carried out and Russia had been confirmed in all the conquests she made by the treaty of San Stefano. In discussing the question of reforms in Turkey, Hartington characterized Salisbury's defence of the assertion that England had frequently spent blood and treasure in defense of bad governments, as an immoral policy.

Intelligence received at Simla from Yar Khan, of the 31st of August, announces that 12,000 Udegalis, Kinghiz and Kipchaks had reached Ming-yul, Kashgar, where they met a large force of Chinese. Two indecisive engagements were fought, in which the Chinese lost many killed. A Kipchak, who was arrested as a spy, states that the Russians supplied stores to the invaders. Chinese troops from Yangi, Hissar and Yar, have been dispatched against them. Another Afghan column is advancing across the Altai Pamir Mountains and has captured Siri Kohl.

The Philadelphia mint is at work principally on silver dollars. It is expected that the treasury will be able to purchase sufficient silver for delivery at San Francisco, to enable that mint to relieve the Philadelphia mint of the dollar coinage. The latter mint will then work on small gold pieces.

The argument in the great gas suit between the city of St. Louis and the St. Louis Gas Company, which has dragged along in the circuit court for twenty three years, and which has been before the supreme court several months, closed Thursday at Jefferson City, and was taken under advisement. The decision will probably be rendered in about three weeks. The suit involves over $3,000,000, and the very best legal talent in the city and state has been employed in the case.

An old man, giving his name as William Johnson, was found in the woods near Hardenburg last week in a dying condition. He said he had been there four days.

About 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon, four Indianapolis policemen made a sudden descent upon one of the "high toned" gambling houses of that city, and captured sixteen votaries of "Chance."

Jack Murray, who broke jail at Columbia City in June last, was captured Monday in St. Louis. The Sheriff of Whitley County went to St. Louis, identified Murray, and on Friday lodged him safely in Michigan City.

John Collier and John Fry indulged in a little "knifing" diversion at Indianapolis, Thursday. They were playing pool and Fry was elected to pay for the game, and he cut Collier across the abdomen. Collier will recover.

The trouble between Bishop Chatard and Father Fitzpatrick will go into the courts for settlement. The bishop has appointed Father McBaron, of St. Mary's village, to succeed Father McDermott, at Evansville, with whom Father Fitzpatrick was expected to exchange.

While engaged in excavating gravel, on Thursday, from a pit on the land of James Ridenbaugh, to complete the extension of the Burnsville turnpike, workmen exhumed two skeletons of human beings of full size. One was in a good state of preservation, but the other crumbled when exposed. As there was no graveyard in the vicinity, it is supposed the skeletons were those of some Indians, or some early wild adventurers who fell a prey to the scalping knife of the savages.

CRIMES AND CASUALTIES.

About 1,000 feet of the Bay St. Louis bridge, on the New Orleans & Mobile railroad, was burned Friday.

A warrant was issued Friday for the arrest of L. C. Harvey, city clerk of Urbana, O., for the issuing of fraudulent bonds of the municipality. The council has offered a reward of $300 for his arrest.

In the first race at Atlanta, Friday, Sally Pope stumbled and fell throwing her rider, Bob Cotton, colored, of Nashville, cutting a deep wound in his head. He lies in a critical condition and the result may be fatal.

Stack No. 1 of the Brier Hill Furnace Company, Youngstown, O., burst Friday morning, burning the hoist, stack house, crusher and five cars belonging to the P. & Y. R. R. Loss about $15,000; insured for $10,000.

A large black vessel, supposed to be the H. Rooney, of Kingston, loaded with lime stone, missed the pier during a westerly gale, Friday. She drifted to leeward and sank in forty feet of water. The life boat has gone to her assistance. The crew is reported lost.

Chief of Police Kennedy, formerly inspector of the Milwaukee house of correction, began an action Friday against the proprietors of the Milwaukee Sentinel for criminal libel in publishing the charges of an ex-convict against the management of that institution.

Whelan, Woods, Bosse, Sullivan, and Mrs. Annie Thomas, five of the people arrested at St. Louis on Wednesday night and Thursday for dealing in and showing counterfeit silver dollars and half dollars, were taken before United States Commissioner Ward on Friday afternoon. Bail for each person was fixed at $5,000. Bosse gave bonds at once, but Sullivan and Mrs. Thomas were remanded.

President John Taylor, Brigham Young's successor, in an interview recently, said the government could not suppress polygamy, because it was a divine revelation; if it ever died out it would be the work of Providence. He says bad debts, locked doors and drunkards are unknown in Utah, except among the gentiles. "Show me," he said, "a man among the gentiles who is not actually a polygamist." Speaking of religious liberty, he said the Mormon leaders had always been more liberal with the gentiles than the latter had been with the former. Salt Lake City is the only place in the world where the Jews are classed with the gentiles.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

Mr. Ole Bull is at Madison, Wis. "Pinafore" has been sung in Boston about 400 times.

Geneva, Switzerland, has a new million-dollar opera house.

Mr. Schoenbein has become a member of the Madrigal Club.

Mr. Arthur Sullivan will sail from England for America on the 25th inst.

HER KING.

She has not found her King as yet,
The golden days are flying;
They bring no sorrow to forget,
Nor any cause to sigh.
No heart for her devotion made
The passionate summons bring;
Unhappily she walks and musing,
She has not found her King.

Men bring their titles and their gold;
She turns to scorn away;
The man who is of different mould
She swears she will obey.
Though poor in honors and in lands,
Rich in a truer thing,
Titled by God alone, his stanzas,
Whom she will own her King.

But when he comes, as come he will,
Striving to surpass her King;
With supplication that will fill
Her soul, like a command;
She will place her hand in his, and take
Whichever this world may bring,
Proud and contented for his sake,
Whom she hath crowned her King!

CHAPTER XVII.

FROM NORTH TO SOUTH.

The pronunciation of the word all-gro is not a matter of very grave moment. A man may make a mistake about it and nevertheless be a good Christian and a loyal subject. All the same, it was this trifling affair of a wrong accent that suddenly and unexpectedly changed the whole course of Miss Violet North's life.

The girl had an impatient pre-tenace of all kinds which she carried to an extreme. While she was at Miss Main's school not one of the girls dared to wear a bit of sham jewelry. Now, Lady North was not a highly accomplished woman, and like most persons of imperfect education, she had the habit of adorning her talk with scraps of language which she was but scantily acquainted. The resentment of Violet North against this species of affectation was implacable. It was no use telling her that human nature had developed more deadly crimes, than that. It was no use urging that the difference between all-gro and alle-gro was not a matter to keep one awake at night.

"Why should she use the word at all? Why should she pretend to know a language that she doesn't know? I hate the meanness of that perpetual shamming!"

And of course Lady North, again like most imperfectly educated persons, was deeply incensed when she was corrected; and out of this small matter—a long e or a short e—sprang up a quarrel which pointed to but one conclusion. The hollow "truce" was broken. Step-mother and step-daughter could not remain in the same house. Neither wished it, so it remained for Sir Acton North to say what was to be done.

Sir Acton was, as usual, quite submissive. He could not understand why two women should quarrel over an Italian word; but then, he had long ago given up the hope of understanding anything about women. He asked his wife what she wanted him to do about Violet; Lady North refused to intermeddle in that young lady's affairs in any way whatever. He went to Violet herself, who told him that she did not care what happened to her so long as she got out of the house. She also hinted that she was quite able to earn her own living, at which Sir Acton laughed, and went away not much enlightened.

In this extremity he bethought himself of that small household on the south of the river, in which Violet had often taken refuge, as if it were her natural home; and it occurred to him that as Mrs. Warren and her brother had been good enough to offer to take Violet with them for their autumn holidays, they might perhaps be inclined to extend their hospitality further, provided that some proper recompense were made them. Violet, he knew, would be amply satisfied with that arrangement; and it was an arrangement, moreover, which could only be but temporary, for, of course, the girl was sure to marry.

Sir Acton found Mr. Drummond busily engaged in greasing a pair of enormously thick shooting-boots, while a pair of very old leather leggings lay beside him on the table of the small dining-room.

"I can't shake hands with you, sir," said he, laying down his wooden pipe. "You see, we are just preparing for our plunge into an absolutely savage life; and you never can trust any body to grease your boots but yourself. I hope Miss Violet quite understands the sort of life she will lead when she comes with us?"

"It was about her I wanted to speak to you, Mr. Drummond," said Miss Violet's father; and then he sat down and told Mr. Drummond the whole story, as well as he could make it out.

This was a delicate mission on which Sir Acton had come, and several times he seemed rather embarrassed, but the quick, direct speech of Mr. Drummond helped him on.

"Do I understand you, then, that Violet is without a home?"

"She has none in prospect—that is to say, of course we could arrange about her staying with some one."

"She can always have a home here, and a hearty welcome. My sister will assure her of that."

"I expected you would say as much; the girl is indeed fortunate in having such friends," said Sir Acton, who was really touched with the frank, unhesitating way in which the offer was made; "and I will confess that I had some notion of this when I came over to see you. Still, it is an awkward thing for one man to ask another man to take his daughter off his hands."

"Don't speak about that. If Violet will come and live with us, we shall be glad to have her. Of course, she knows what she must expect. We are very plain-living folk, and we are not rich enough to alter our ways in entertaining a guest, although we should like to do that."

"I don't think she has found your ways unsuited to her," her father said, with a smile, "to judge by the readiness with which she always comes here. No, she has more sense than that; there is nothing of the petted child about her. But, on the other hand, Mr. Drummond," continued Violet's father, with obvious embarrassment, "you will forgive me if I suggest that—that the obligation you put me under would be too great if you did not allow me to make you some recompense; a sum might be stated."

He was in great dread of offending this shy, capricious, strange man, and he was greatly relieved to find Mr. Drummond, instead of drawing himself up and looking hurt, breaking out into a hearty laugh.

"No, no, Sir Acton, we don't take in boarders; and to think of our being paid for having Violet North come to live with us! But I must tell Sarah about it; excuse me for one second, Sir Acton."

Off he went, leaving the worthy and practical-minded baronet very much puzzled. It was true, he knew, that Mr. Drummond was a gentleman; but was he not also very poor? and had not the offer been made with great delicacy? and surely it was most unreasonable that this family should bear the expense of supporting a rich man's daughter. His sister returned with him. They were both of them apparently greatly delighted over this probable addition to their household.

When would she come over? Would he remember to remind her of her music? Ought Mrs. Warren to come and help her to move her small belongings? And would he make her promise before she left not to do all Amy Warren's lessons for her, seeing that that young lady had now got out of her childhood?

"Sir Acton North began to wonder less over his daughter's liking for this quiet little house and its occupants. There was a wonderful sense of homeliness about the place, and a bright, humorous frankness about this tall, lanky man and his gentle sister. But, before Sir Acton left, Mr. Drummond took him aside, and said to him, with more seriousness,

"There is one point, sir, about which we ought to have a clear understanding before your daughter comes over to live with us. I believe that that young fellow Miller is, in a fashion, paying his addresses to her. That is with your sanction, I presume?"

"Why, yes," said Sir Acton, rather staggered by the directness of the question, and also by the calm, observant look of those singularly bright and intelligent eyes. "The young man saw me—that nonsense was all explained away—and indeed it was a thoroughly frolic that may be forgotten now. If the girl likes him, I see no reason why they should not marry. Do you?"

"I?" repeated Drummond, almost with a start. "What have I to do with it? It is her father who must give his consent."

"Do you know any thing against the young man?"

"Nothing in the world," was the hearty answer.

"Well, then, he is a fairly shrewd, practical-headed young fellow; he will have quite enough money; his family is respectable—I really don't see any objection."

"That is very well, Sir Acton. I merely wished to be entirely clear from responsibility."

"Mind you, my dear sir," broke in Sir Acton, as if he had suddenly remembered something, "don't imagine the anxious to get rid of my daughter—by marriage or otherwise—merely because she and her step-mother don't agree. No, no; rather than see her uncomfortable, I'd—confound it! I'd send the whole pack of 'em flying. Violet's a good girl—she's worth twenty dozen."

But here Sir Acton thought he had said enough.

"I understand you, then, sir," said Mr. Drummond, quite calmly, "that you have no objection to Mr. Miller meeting your daughter while she is under my care; and if they should engage to marry each other, good and well?"

"I see no objection. But why do you speak of that as if it were something to be feared?"

"Pardon me; I am sure I had no such intention."

"Good-bye, Mr. Drummond," said Sir Acton, at the door; "you have done me a great kindness; I will try to repay you some day. Oh, by-the-way, I suppose I may get a salmon-carriage reserved for you when you go North?"

"No, thank you," said Mr. Drummond, quietly. "We always go second-class, and I don't think Miss Violet expects us to alter our ordinary habits."

Next day a young lady burst into the room where Mrs. Warren was sitting sewing, and threw herself down on her knees, and put her hands in her friend's lap.

"And oh! is it quite true? And am I to live with you always?" she cried; and the fine, frank, handsome face and the dark and eloquent eyes were full of joy and gratitude.

"You are to stay with us as long as you please," said Mrs. Warren, much more gravely, as she kissed the girl.

Violet looked up, quickly, and scanned her friend's face.

"Are you displeased with me?"

There was a gentle hand laid on her head.

"Violet, you are no longer a girl. You ought not to give way to your temper, under whatever provocation. And it does not look well to see any girl so glad to leave her home."

to us. He thought you had resolved to be a little more patient, and gentle, and obedient."

The girl rose quickly, turning her head aside; but all the same her friend had caught sight of the sudden tears that had sprung to those long black lashes.

"Violet!"

"I can go back."

"You shall not go back, Violet. Listen to reason—"

"Oh! you don't know—you don't know the life I had to lead in that house," the girl cried, passionately, with the tears running down her face; "and you think that I am proud and ungrateful; and perhaps you are afraid to take me? But I am not ungrateful to those I can love and respect—no—you will not find me that; and there is nothing I would not suffer for my dear friends, as you may find out some day. But I have had no friends—you know I have had no friends—but the friends in this house; and what would I not do for them? Only to be in the house with you, I would be a kitchen drudge for you—indeed, I would; I would work my eyes blind for you; there is no patience and no obedience you would not have. But I must respect and love the people whom I serve, and then I am ready to become their slave from morning till night."

Mrs. Warren strove to hush the wild, piteous words.

"You must not take so much to heart what I said, Violet," she remonstrated, gently. "And you won't have to do all these things in order to please your friends. Only be true to your own better nature, and you will be a constant delight to them."

The girl took up her friend's hand and kissed it; then she left the room. Mrs. Warren understood the mute promise of obedience.

CHAPTER XVIII.

CASTLE BANDOX, N. B.

The great white mists of rain had lifted; and all the world behind stood revealed—a strange, new, dream-like world, colorless, still, its various tints of gray shining with a sufficed and mystic light. The gray sea was like glass; the gray mountains were pale and distant; and in all this vague and phantom-like picture, there was one sharp and definite object—a constant vessel lying motionless out there on the shining gray sea, its hull as black as jet; its brown sails throwing perfect shadows on the mirror beneath. It was as yet early morning. Early as it was, a young lady had managed to write the following letter, which she was just putting into an envelope:

"Castle Bandox, in the Western Highlands, 12th August.—MY DEAR PAPA.—You have known for many a year that I am the most dutiful of daughters; so here is the account I promised you of our explorations in this wild country. It was on the evening of the 10th of August, in the present year, that we effected our disembarkation, and were most hospitably received by the inhabitants of this coast, two of whom willingly agreed (after much talk among themselves in a language we did not understand) to carry our luggage and accoutrements for us (on wheelbarrows). Throwing out a scout or two, in the shape of bare-headed children, with very brown faces, bare legs and feet, and tattered kilts, we struck a trail which eventually led us away from the coast into the mountains. By-and-by we ascended, until behind us we could behold the open waters of the Atlantic, with various long and beautiful islands, and the lofty mountains of Morven and Mull; while in our front, crowning a small knoll that stands in the midst of an amphitheatre of heather-clad hills, we beheld a small, peaked, white building, which we made bold to call Castle Bandox. By whom, or when, this solitary habitation, in the midst of the moors, was built, I do not know. We have already discovered it to be the most delightful of toy-houses, once you have got accustomed to knocking your head against the sloping roof of your bedroom."

"Scarcely had we arrived when the youngest member of the party and the writer of this narrative, leaving to our elders the business of unpacking, started off on an exploration of the adjoining mountains, the nearest of which is separated from the garden by a wire fence to keep out rabbits. The first mountain on the other side of the wire fence we named Mount Glorious. Its chief peculiarity is its tangle of furze, brambles, meadow-sweet, and ferns round its lower slopes; then you come to a forest of young larches, trees which tear your hair to pieces, and leave tufts of sticky white all over your clothes. Passing round the summit of this mountain, the adventures reached another peak, which they named Mount Magnifico: the chief peculiarity of this eminence is its immensely high heather—beautiful to look at, but desperately difficult to walk through. The third and last of this chain of mountains we ventured to call Mount Extremisoso, the chief peculiarity of which is an abundance of steep gray rocks, up which you must scramble to find yourself on a high and windy summit of close and slippery grass. We got no farther than that."

"But oh, papa, if you could see what we saw there—what we can see now from the windows of this place—the long stretches of sea, and the distant mountains that appear to rise out of the water, and that change in color every minute of the day! I remember, just as we were getting to the station, Mr. Drummond saying to me, 'You will find a difference between Euston Square and Morven'; but I had no idea of what difference."

"We have the most delightful evenings—so cheerful and homely; and although Mr. Drummond professes to have become a thorough savage, and to have forsaken all books and writing, and to be interested only in cartridges and setters, and so forth, in the evening he talks about every thing you can think of, and it is worth a thousand lectures to hear him, besides being much more amusing than a lecture. Now I must say good-bye; for Amy and I are going out to see some of the shooting; and it is, time, we started."

"Your affectionate daughter,"

"VIOLET NORTH." Come along now, and bring all your water-proofs, cloaks, wrappers, and umbrellas!"

A tall, gaunt figure was standing in the doorway, clad in a rough shooting-jacket, leggings, and thick boots. A much smaller and older man—a curious, little, weather-beaten man—was standing outside, holding in leash a very ragged-looking setter.

The wiry little man cast a glance around at the gray skies and the still gray sea.

"Na, na," he said, "it'll no rain the day."

"But, confound you, it is raining!" cried Drummond. "What do you call that?"

He pointed to the rain-drops formed by the drizzle that had fallen on the well-oiled barrels of his breech-loader.

"Well, and off the gun is to come to harm with that," said old Peter, testily, "you will better be for leaving it at home. It is the gentlemen now they will take care of their guns as if the guns was no for shooting at all. You should be brought a gun that was good for this country."

"You will have to clean this gun very carefully, I can tell you, Peter; and every night, too."

"I will not," said the old man, sturdily. "There is no man will know more about guns as me; and every Saturday night, that will do forry well. It was Mr. Maclean, of Carr-Sloe, he used to say to the gentlemen at the house, 'Kek, what would we do without a Sunday every week? our guns would suffer be cleaned at all.' But the Sunday, it was made for other things as the cleaning of guns; and the Saturday night, that will do better for me."

"Then you won't clean my gun every night?"

"There is no use of it."

"Then I must do it myself, I suppose?"

"Ferry well."

The two girls now came down stairs, fully equipped for the expedition; and the oddly assorted party party now set out.

"Is that dog of yours any better behaved, Peter?"

"He's a gran' good dog, a ferry good dog," said the old Highlandman. "There is just nothing that will pass the nose of him. Ay, I will say this, that sometimes he is a something too eager in the rinning'—ay, just a wee thing too eager."

"Yes," said Mr. Drummond, "he has no fault at all—beyond a fancy for eating every bird you shoot."

The old man was nettled; but there was a humorous twinkle in his eyes all the same.

"Ay, sir; but even then he will not get too fat when he is out with you, sir."

"Confound you, Peter, you are more imprudent than ever."

"Na, na, sir; I will only speak the truth to you, as you will speak it to me; and there is no harm in that."

"I think, Mr. Peter," said a certain tall young lady, with great asperity and dignity, "I think you might speak the truth a little more respectfully."

The old keeper gave her a side-glance as he trudged along.

"Ay, I am in the use of heeling leddies come out to the shooting."

"Peter and I understand each other very well, Violet," Mr. Drummond said. "You will soon learn not to mind what he says—especially when he reports about the game. I suppose you are quite prepared, Peter, to find the forms of thirty or forty wholly imaginary hares at a moment's notice?"

Peter but half understood the sarcasm.

"There is plenty of game, if there was any one to shoot it," said he, coolly.

By this time they had reached the margin of the shooting, and the tall sportsman was transferring to his pockets some of the cartridges which Peter carried, when suddenly the whole world seemed to grow black around them. They had passed the last signs of cultivation; and the only possible shelter from the impending storm was a wall of rough stones that ran up the valley between two hills.

As the first heavy drops were already splashing down, they had to make a race for this dike; Peter following up the retreat with ill-concealed disgust. Here was the mischief of taking ladies out shooting—and on the 12th, too.

The small group successfully crouched under the wall, the driving wind carrying the fierce torrents of rain well over them; while Peter stood out in the open, unconcernedly looking out toward the sea.

The intermediate veil of a rainy cloud served to show the distant sunlit sea and the hills as something pale, magical, and remote; while the island of Lismore, nearer at hand, began to gleam through a mass of rainbow colors that seemed to lie along the sea for a space of fifteen or twenty miles. This strange and spectral world was full of motion, too—its aspect changing every minute—as the black clouds broke overhead to show bold dashes of white and blue; as the distant sunlight drank up the rain-clouds, and then the great hills came out distinct and clear, and all round the splendid castles of Morven, Mull, and Lorne the rushing blue seas of the Atlantic shrouded in the light.

This warm burst of sunlight roused the crouching party; and when they stood up they found the beautiful bright day showing the colors of the hills around at their very richest—the clear, shining grays of the rocks, the pink patches of heather, the yellow-greens of the bracken, and the curious blue-greens of the furze, with every where to each point of light a sharp black shadow.

"Are you ready, now, sir?" said Peter, impatiently.

"You needn't be in a hurry, Peter; there's nothing to shoot, you know."

Now, these words had scarcely been uttered when an extraordinary circumstance occurred. The party were passing by the side of a small inclosure of young larches planted along the side of the hill; and just at this moment a hare ran out right in front of them.

"Shoot, sir, shoot!" yelled Peter, seeing that the sportsman calmly contemplated the hare, without putting up his gun.

MORE THAN SALAMANDER.

A Man Who Walked Unharmed Through the Memphis Plague—Burying 3,000 Corpses.

(St. Louis Globe-Democrat.)

Mr. John Walsh, undertaker for the taxing district of Shelby county, who became famous during the plague of 1878, for the fearlessness with which he performed his arduous, disagreeable and dangerous duty, is in the city, having left the infected city last Sunday. Last year, when the yellow fever threatened to annihilate every soul in Memphis, and 15,000 or 20,000 of its inhabitants fled for safety, including officers of the civil, state and federal governments, upon whom great responsibilities rested, Mr. Walsh remained at his post of duty. All around him brave men were dying, who like him remained to succor the distressed; but he flinched not. To bury the dead was duty, and only those who were witnesses of the terrible scenes can realize what fortitude, what heroism, that duty required. White men refused to assist him in carrying the bodies to the cemetery, and a time came when even the colored men rejected liberal offers of money, refusing to handle the bodies of the dead, so sickening were the odors they had to encounter and the sights they saw, and Mr. Walsh himself was in many instances compelled to handle the putrescent remains. He lived in and breathed an atmosphere of death in its most horrible form, such as would make the stoutest heart quake and undermine any but the strongest constitution. Between 5,000 and 6,000 people died in and around Memphis during the last epidemic, and probably one-half of these were placed under the sod by Mr. Walsh.

"What was the greatest number you buried in one day?"

"You mean, say from 12 o'clock one day until 12 o'clock the next?"

"Yes."

"About 150."

"How many of a morning?"

"Before breakfast one morning, about thirty-five."

Last winter the reporter wandered over the Potter's Field with Mr. Walsh, and he can never forget the sight witnessed, and the saddening thoughts it gave rise to—the sunken graves, consequent upon having been hurriedly made and then deluged with heavy rains; the bare cross-tombs, with pieces of paper inserted in clefts, bearing memoranda, which had almost been obliterated by the action of the weather, as the only tokens of identity of what rested beneath.

Swayne's friends expect him to be acquitted.

The market collections this morning were $7.00.

E. L. Chittenden returned from Chicago to-day.

Miss Florence Griffin has returned from New York.

The circuit jury was discharged to-day for the term.

Senator Foster was speculating in potatoes this morning.

Wheat and flour markets are unchanged since yesterday.

The cigar men are out on their weekly collection to-day.

The season for a stick of wood to blow up somebody's stove has arrived.

Mr. L. Buiger was registered at the Grand Hotel, Indianapolis, yesterday.

A farmer passed up street to-day accompanied by the sweet strains of a sawtooth.

Jonathan Coleman, a well-known farmer of St. Joseph township, died last night, aged 47.

The Perry Centre school has been closed on account of the prevalence of whooping cough.

Wm. Johnston, trustee of Maumee township, is in the city to-day settling with the commissioners.

There are forty applicants for teachers licenses to-day, most of them being from other counties.

There is considerable speculation as to what will be done with the United States district court in this place.

The entries for the races will close Monday next. It is expected that there will be a splendid field of horses here.

Calhoun street, between Main and Columbia was in a state of blockade this morning. Potatoes and corn did the business.

Joseph F. Beegan will leave next Monday for Washington, D. C., where he will enter the senior law class of Georgetown College.

Mrs. J. R. Walton, living near the corner of Douglas avenue and Calhoun street, fell in the yard last evening, breaking her arm. Dr. Myers attended.

John Lillie says no matter what the tastes of the balance of the council may be, Dwyer will always be Tony. Nor no matter how dry the council may be, Tony will always be Dwyer.

Henry M. Auten and wife, of Fredricktown, O., who have been visiting for several days past at the residence of George Terry, left for home to-day. They are delighted with Fort Wayne.

The commissioners were to-day hearing arguments on the Killian ditch and allowing miscellaneous bills. They also granted a liquor license to James Ballou, of Huntertown.

Yesterday afternoon a horse and buggy backed into the canal near Orr's residence in the west end. The horse was rescued with great difficulty. The name of the owner could not be learned.

This afternoon a farmer on Calhoun street fastened his lines around the hub of the hind wheel of his wagon, the horses then entered into a bucking pool and came near demolishing a couple of show windows.

Last Thursday a man who was helping to thresh on the Jackson farm in Perry township was seriously injured by the dropping of the smokestack of the engine on his head. An ugly cut was inflicted, and he will be laid up for some time.

Adam Marquardt, of Madison township, is named in connection with the office of county commissioner. Mr. Marquardt is an old time democrat, a good farmer and a man of ability. He would make an excellent county commissioner.

An attempt was made by burglars last night to enter the house of Joe Storm on West Wayne streets. They tried the kitchen door and had a key in the lock, when Mrs. Storms hearing the noise, got out of bed. The burglars hearing her, ran away without accomplishing anything except to leave the key in the door.

FOR HIS LIFE.

Jack Swayne to be Tried for Murder Next Monday.

An Account of the Crime with Which He Stands Charged.

On Monday next is the day set for the commencement of the trial of John Swayne upon his indictment for the murder of John Sheehy, on the night of the 4th of last July, at the fair grounds, in this city. Being of universal interest an epitome of the case at this moment may not be out of place.

All day a dance had been in progress at the edge of the fair grounds under the management of Low Clark. Beer stands were a principal feature of the entertainment, and drunken prostitutes and harlots with their vile plumps and suckers, combined to make the gathering an assemblage of black-legs seldom equalled in civilized countries.

About 10 o'clock, just at the conclusion of the fireworks exhibition and when the orgies were at their height, word was passed that John Sheehy had been stabbed and lay dying within a few feet of the pandemonium. The report was soon verified; but, strange to say, no one knew who did the deed, nor how or precisely when it was committed, notwithstanding the fact that there were at least 10,000 people still on the grounds and officers of the law were within speaking distances of Sheehy when the fatal thrust was given. Sheehy was picked up and tenderly taken to his home on Taylor street, where he died at 9 o'clock the next morning. It was reported that Sheehy had had a quarrel with some one shortly before, but his dying statement threw no light on the subject. All he said was:

"I met the girl and went out walking with her. We had only been out two or three minutes when a man came up and took the girl away from me. As she left I tapped her on the shoulder, and the man then stabbed me. I don't know the names of either of them. I know the girl's name."

The wound was a deep gash in the left abdomen, and the post mortem examination revealed that it was very deep and that death had resulted from hemorrhage.

The officers at once took the case in hand, and by noon Sheriff Munson had lodged "Bernie Wilson" in jail, who pretended to know something about the affair. At 3 o'clock the same day John Durbine was also arrested on suspicion, but as yet nothing definite had been ascertained, but Sheriff Munson was at work, and on Saturday evening, July 6th, arrested John Swayne as the murderer of John Sheehy. Swayne at first denied the charge, but since his first denial has, upon the advice of his attorneys, been entirely reticent upon the subject. Mrs. George Richards was interviewed by the sheriff, and made some disclosures which led to the arrest of Rose Overly and Rebecca Wiest, that same night in a little log shanty north of the city, and they are now in the county jail, being held for trial.

This is the account of the crime and arrests as far as known. The developments will be made at the trial. Swayne has a great deal of popular sympathy, and public opinion appears to be divided as to his guilt. His friends and attorneys expect to see him acquitted of the crime charged, and it is to be hoped that, if innocent, he will be entirely vindicated.

RAILROAD RISKS.

Taken By the P. F. W. & O. Mutual Benefit Association--The Closing Proceedings.

The following is a summary of the secretary's report: Total certificates issued to Sept. 30, 1879, 2,309; total for year ending Sept. 30, 1879, 409; cash balance on hand Sept. 30, 1879, to credit of expense fund, $504.84; amount of assessments collected during year, $14,852.10; amount paid heirs, $15,000.

The treasurer's report showed $97.33 to the credit of the assessment fund.

The recommendations of the committee on constitution and by-laws in regard to articles 16 and 18, were laid on the table, and the one recommending the holding of the annual convention one month earlier was adopted.

The special committee's report suggesting that no action be taken in the case of August Bernhard, and the $3 resolution of W. F. Shaw was approved; and the suggestion that the case of George Hedges be referred to the next annual convention was laid on the table.

The old board was then re-elected by acclamation.

The election of officers resulted in the choice of H. W. Wykoop, president; Thos. Adams, vice-president; William Adams, secretary; John J. Kirkland, treasurer.

After fixing the place of holding the next convention at Allegheny, and extending the thanks of the convention to the railroad company, the Rev. Mr. McFarland, Marshal Diehl and the Fort Wayne delegates, the convention adjourned, amidst the greatest good feeling all around.

S. P. & M. An Institution of Fort Wayne.

A SENTINEL reporter heard a man say yesterday that Fort Wayne could just as well get along without the City Hall, or the Court House, as it could without Sam, Pete & Max, the Clothiers on Calhoun and Main streets, and come to think about it, it is so. They are always up to the times, reasonable and reliable. To-day you want to see their magnificent stock of full and winter overcoats, there was never anything to equal it in the city before.

ST. PETER'S FAIR.

An Auspicious Opening at the Academy Last Night.

Some of the Attractions Which Are Offered by the Ladies.

A merry throng gathered at the Academy last evening, at the opening of St. Peter's Church Fair, and whiled away a few hours very pleasantly. Among the beautiful collections of fancy work which adorn the several booths are many marvels of woman's dainty handiwork. The first booth which attracts attention on entering is situated to the right, where a fine collection of fancy work is presented. This booth is presided over by the Misses Stiers, Griffe, Manning and Cuthner.

The second and third are of the same character, and are under the management of Mrs. Franke, Mrs. Forbing, Miss Fuchs and Misses Roth, Goeke, Manok, Frank, Wisno and Hopdhead.

Just in front of the stage is a stand where fair hands, backed by smiling countenances, pass the festive but unobtrusive lemonade to the thirsty traveler, while the stage itself is filled with tables where the inner-man may become refreshed.

Just in front of the curtain are two blackboards for the registry of votes for the most popular city official and fireman. The official who has the most votes at the close of the fair will be made the recipient of an elegant cane, while the lucky fireman who fills the corresponding position will hereafter sit his opinions in relation to the candidates for the honor of supporting his weary limbs by the aid of that cane, as Chief of Police Smith, Marshal Diehl, and Street Commissioner O'Brien, while Geo. Stodol, Rob. Cran, Fred Michaels and John McGowan cast longing looks at the trumpet.

At the left of the entrance is a fortune wheel, several cases of stuffed birds, a plush parlor set and many other attractive exhibits.

Judging from last evening's indications, the fair cannot fail to prove a substantial and gratifying success, and certainly the ladies deserve great credit for their endeavors to make it such.

THE GANG.

Something About the Boys at Michigan City.

Charlie Comphrey returned from Michigan City last night at 11.25. We report the Fort Wayne boys all looking well, excepting Perry Tracy, who is on the sick list. Tim Casey is reported the finest looking man in the prison, and Walt Dunham is looking fat, hale and hearty. Sam Ward is holding his own, and Joe Brackenridge says he has been there five months, which does not seem longer than five weeks. Joe is employed in the dining room and was making coffee when the visitors found him.

There are at present 864 prisoners in the penitentiary.

Coming home, Charlie says he saw the body of Burr, the missing balloonist.

A Serious Accident.

Last evening about half past 6 o'clock a little son of Wm. Teghtmeyer, living on Harrison street, went to the barn on some slight errand, and while there amused himself by climbing up the ladder leading to the hay-mow. From the present condition of young Teghtmeyer one would judge that he had climbed that ladder once too often. When about half way up the ladder the boy slipped and fell, his wrist striking on the edge of a box which was lying below, breaking his arm in three places. The screams of the child brought the parents to the barn, where they found the boy lying in an unconscious condition. He was picked up and taken to the house, where Dr. Myers was summoned, who set the arm and the little fellow is now doing well.

"The Sentinel."

The Miami County Sentinel gives the SENTINEL a parting "boom." The Fort Wayne DAILY SENTINEL is now delivered by carrier at 6 o'clock in the evening. The paper goes to press with its last edition in time to express it to Fort three hours and a half ahead of any daily paper that comes here. Give the Sentinel a "boom," if you will, and sign for early and late intelligence.

[National Enterprise.]

The Fort Wayne SENTINEL failed to put in an appearance at this place Tuesday evening and was sadly missed by its numerous readers. Why the SENTINEL missed its mail we cannot say.

A telegram was received by friends in this city, last evening, announcing the death, at Kendallville, of Wm. A. Dykes, after an illness of about two weeks. He was the son of Hon. Robt. Dykes, president of the late board of northern Indiana penitentiary commission, and a grandson of Andrew Dykes of this county. He was twenty-two years old, and a young man of unusual promise. His early death will be sincerely regretted by a large circle of friends.

Wheat and flour markets are unchanged since yesterday.

The cigar men are out on their weekly collection to-day.

The season for a stick of wood to blow up somebody's stove has arrived.

Mr. L. Bulger was registered at the Grand Hotel, Indianapolis, yesterday.

A farmer passed up street to-day accompanied by the sweet strains of a sweentee.

Jonathan Coleman, a well-known farmer of St. Joseph township, died last night, aged 47.

The Perry Centre school has been closed on account of the prevalence of whooping cough.

Wm. Johnston, trustee of Maumee township, is in the city to-day settling with the commissioners.

There are forty applicants for teachers licenses to-day, most of them being from other counties.

There is considerable speculation as to what will be done with the United States district court at this place.

The entries for the races will close Monday next. It is expected that there will be a splendid field of horses here.

Calhoun street, between Main and Columbia was in a state of blockade this morning. Potatoes and corn did the business.

Joseph F. Beegan will leave next Monday for Washington, D. C., where he will enter the senior law class of Georgetown College.

Mrs. J. R. Walton, living near the corner of Douglas avenue and Calhoun street, fell in the yard last evening, breaking her arm. Dr. Myers attended.

John Lillie says no matter what the tastes of the balance of the council may be, Dryer will always be Tony. Nor no matter how dry the council may be, Tony will always be Dryer.

Henry M. Auten and wife, of Fredricktown, O., who have been visiting for several days past at the residence of George Terry, left for home to-day. They are delighted with Fort Wayne.

The commissioners were to-day hearing arguments on the Killian ditch and allowing miscellaneous bills. They also granted a liquor license to James Ballou, of Huntertown.

Yesterday afternoon a horse and buggy backed into the canal near Orr's residence in the west end. The horse was rescued with great difficulty. The name of the owner could not be learned.

This afternoon a farmer on Calhoun street fastened his line around the hub of the hind wheel of his wagon, the horses then entered into a backing pool and came near demolishing a couple of show windows.

Last Thursday a man who was helping to throw a Jackson on a Perry township was seriously injured by the dropping of the smokestack of the engine on his head. An ugly cut was inflicted, and he will be laid up for some time.

Adam Marquardt, of Madison township, is named in connection with the office of county commissioner. Mr. Marquardt is an old time democrat, a good farmer and a man of ability. He would make an excellent county commissioner.

An attempt was made by burglars last night to enter the house of Joe Storm on West Wayne street. They tried the kitchen door and had a key in the lock, when Mrs. Storms hearing the noise, got out of bed. The burglars hearing her, ran away without accomplishing anything except to leave the key in the door.

THE RAILROADS.

The Wabash pay car has gone west.

There were only 30 emigrants on No. 1 to-day.

The Pittsburgh shipped 30 cars of stock east to-day.

Last night was the busiest of any for a long time in the Wabash dispatcher's office.

The railroad men delegations left for the east last night on their special car. It was attached to No. 6.

Geo. Gordon moved his checks and other traps to-day into his old quarters. It's the paint that makes George act so proud.

The Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago road will run an excursion train to Chicago on the 12th of November, the date of Grant's arrival at this city.

Capt. J. Y. Ballou, formerly postal agent on the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago road, has been transferred to the Wabash road, and will run between Lafayette and Toledo.

Harry Deane and sister Annie, Ed. Peddler and wife and C. E. Douglass, all of Alliance, O., who were attending the convention here yesterday, remained in the city until 1:20 to-day when they left for a brief visit to Chicago before returning home.

FOR HIS LIFE.

Jack Swayne to be Tried for Murder Next Monday.

An Account of the Crime with Which He Stands Charged.

On Monday next is the day set for the commencement of the trial of John Swayne upon his indictment for the murder of John Sheehy, on the night of the 4th of last July, at the fair grounds, in this city. Being of universal interest an epitome of the case at this moment may not be out of place.

All day a dance had been in progress at the edge of the fair grounds under the management of Lew Clark. Beer stands were a principal feature of the entertainment, and drunken prostitutes and harlots with their vile pimps and suckers, combined to make the gathering an assemblage of black-legs seldom equalled in civilized countries.

About 10 o'clock, just at the conclusion of the fireworks exhibition and when the orgies were at their height, word was passed that John Sheehy had been stabbed and lay dying within a few feet of the pandemonium. The report was soon verified; but, strange to say, no one knew who did the deed, nor how or precisely when it was committed, notwithstanding the fact that there were at least 10,000 people still on the grounds and officers of the law were within speaking distance of Sheehy when the fatal thrust was given. Sheehy was picked up and tenderly taken to his home on Taylor street, where he died at 9 o'clock the next morning.

It was reported that Sheehy had had a quarrel with some one shortly before, but his dying statement threw no light on the subject. All he said was: "I met the girl and went out walking with her. We had only been out two or three minutes when a man came up and took the girl away from me. As she left I tapped her on the shoulder, and the man then stabbed me. I don't know the names of either of them. I'm a poor fellow."

The wound was a deep gash in the left abdomen, and the post mortem examination revealed that it was very deep and that death had resulted from hemorrhage.

The officers at once took the case in hand, and by noon Sheriff Munson had lodged "Bertie Wilson" in jail, who pretended to know something about the affray.

At 3 o'clock the same day John Durbin was also arrested on suspicion, but as yet nothing definite had been ascertained; but Sheriff Munson was at work, and on Saturday evening, July 5th, arrested John Swayne as the murderer of John Sheehy. Swayne at first denied the charge, but since his first denial has, upon the advice of his attorneys, been entirely reticent upon the subject.

Mrs. George Richards was interviewed by the sheriff, and made some disclosures which led to the arrest of Rose Overly and Rebecca Wiest, that same night in a little log shanty north of the city, and they are now in the county jail, being held for trial.

This is the account of the crime and arrests as far as known. The developments will be made at the trial. Swayne has a great deal of popular sympathy, and public opinion appears to be divided as to his guilt. His friends and attorneys expect to see him acquitted of the crime charged, and it is to be hoped that, if innocent, he will be entirely vindicated.

RAILROAD RISKS.

Taken By the P. F. W. & C. Mutual Benefit Association--The Closing Proceedings.

The following is a summary of the secretary's report: Total certificates issued to Sept. 30, 1879, 2,369; total for year ending Sept. 30, 1879, 409; cash balance on hand Sept. 30, 1879, to credit of expense fund, $564.84; amount of assessments collected during year, $14,552.10; amount paid heirs, $15,000.

The treasurer's report showed $97.28 to the credit of the assessment fund.

The recommendations of the committee on constitution and by-laws in regard to articles 16 and 18, were laid on the table, and the one recommending the holding of the annual convention one month earlier was adopted.

The special committee's report suggesting that no action be taken in the case of August Bernhard, and the $3 resolution of W. F. Shaw was approved; and the suggestion that the case of George Hedges be referred to the next annual convention was laid on the table.

The old board was then re-elected by acclamation.

The election of officers resulted in the choice of H. W. Wynkoop, president; Thos. Adams, vice-president; William Adams, secretary; John J. Kirkland, treasurer.

After fixing the place of holding the next convention at Allegheny, and extending the thanks of the convention to the railroad company, the Rev. Mr. McFarland, Marshall Dick and the Fort Wayne delegates, the convention adjourned, amidst the greatest good feeling all around.

S. P. & M. An Institution of Fort Wayne.

A SENTINEL reporter heard a man say yesterday that Fort Wayne could just as well get along without the City Hall, or the Court House, as it could without Sam, Pete & Max, the Clothiers on Calhoun and Main streets, and come to think about it, it is so. They are always up to the times, reasonable and reliable. To-day you want to see their magnificent stock of fall and winter overcoats, there was never anything to equal it in the city before.

ST. PETER'S FAIR.

An Auspicious Opening at the Academy Last Night.

Some of the Attractions Which Are Offered by the Ladies.

A merry throng gathered at the Academy last evening, at the opening of St. Peter's Church Fair, and whiled away a few hours very pleasantly. Among the beautiful collections of fancy work which adorn the several booths are many marvels of woman's dainty handiwork. The first booth which attracts attention on entering is situated to the right, where a fine collection of fancy work is presented. This booth is presided over by the Misses Stiers, Grafe, Monning and Cuthner.

The second and third are of the same character, and are under the management of Mrs. Franke, Mrs. Forbing, Miss Fuchs and Misses Roth, Goeke, Manok, Frank, Wisno and Hondheim.

Just in front of the stage is a stand where fair hands, backed by smiling countenances, pass the festive but unobtrusive lemonade to the thirsty traveler, while the stage itself is filled with tables where the inner-man may become refreshed.

Just in front of the curtain are two blackboards for the registry of votes for the most popular city official and fireman. The official who has the most votes at the close of the fair will be made the recipient of an elegant cane, while the lucky fireman who fills the corresponding position will hereafter air his opinions in clarion calls through a beautiful silver trumpet.

The candidates for the honor of supporting his weary limbs by the aid of that cane, are Chief of Police Smith, Marshal Diehl, and Street Commissioner O'Brien, while Geo. Stodell, Rob. Cran, Fred Michaels and John McGowan cast longing looks at the trumpet.

At the left of the entrance is a fortune wheel, several cages of stuffed birds, a plush parlor set and many other attractive exhibits.

Judging from last evening's indications, the fair cannot fail to prove a substantial and gratifying success, and certainly the ladies deserve great credit for their endeavors to make it such.

THE GANG.

Something About the Boys at Michigan City.

Charlie Compast returned from Michigan City last night at 11.25. He reports the Fort Wayne boys all looking well, excepting Perry Tracy, who is on the sick list. Tim Casey is reported the finest looking man in the prison, and Walt Dunham is looking fat, hale and hearty. Sam Ward is holding his own, and Joe Brackenridge says he has been there five months, which does not seem longer than five weeks. Jones is employed in the dining room and was making coffee when the visitors found him.

There are at present 654 prisoners in the penitentiary.

Coming home, Charlie says he saw the body of Burr, the missing balloonist.

A Serious Accident.

Last evening about half past 6 o'clock a little son of Wm. Teghtmeyer, living on Harrison street, went to the barn on some slight errand, and while there amused himself by climbing up the ladder leading to the hay-mow. From the present condition of young Teghtmeyer one would judge that he had climbed that ladder once too often. When about half way up the ladder the boy slipped and fell, his wrist striking on the edge of a box which was lying below, breaking his arm in three places. The screams of the child brought the parents to the barn, where they found the boy lying in an unconscious condition. He was picked up and taken to the house, where Dr. Myers was summoned, who set the arm and the little fellow is now doing well.

The "Sentinel."

The Miami County Sentinel gives the SENTINEL a pretty "boom." The Fort Wayne DAILY SENTINEL is now delivered here by carrier at 6 o'clock in the evening. The paper goes to press with its last edition in time to express it to Fort three hours and a half ahead of any daily paper that comes here. Give the SENTINEL a "boom," all of you who want and sign for early and late intelligence.

[National Enterprise.]

The Fort Wayne SENTINEL failed to put in an appearance at this place Tuesday evening and was sadly missed by its numerous readers. Why the SENTINEL missed its mail we cannot say.

A telegram was received by friends in this city, last evening, announcing the death of At Kendallville, of Wm. A. Dykes, after an illness of about two weeks. He was the son of Hon. Robt. Dykes, president of the late board of northern Indiana penitentiary commission, and a grandson of Andrew Dykes of this county. He was twenty-two years old, and a young man of unusual promise. His early death will be sincerely regretted by a large circle of friends.
